owned the 3100 safe since I was 9 or 10 years old. Recently had a house fire where everything... Our safe fell through 2 floors and was trapped in the rubble for 4 days. After letting it cool down, we cut through the steel... To my surprise, everything inside the safe was saved! This Safe Story Submitted by Jason F.View all SentrySafe Stories Look for your safe's factory code in your owner's manual. It is either listed on the back of the last page or in the programming instructions. If you don't have a physical copy, find your safe's owner's manual online at SentrySafe's website. If you don't have your combination or factory code, get a replacement by verifying your ownership of the safe and paying a fee on SentrySafe's lost combo page. 1 Check your safe's owner's manual. Most SentrySafe safes provide the factory code, which is the code you enter to start the combination reset process, inside the owner's manual. This code is usually printed on the back of the manual or listed in the instructions about programming your user code. [1] Some SentrySafe safes have default codes that open the safe and reset the combination. All SentrySafe safes come with the factory code 1-7-5-0-0-# while all Pistol Safes have the default code 1-2-3-4-1. If you have a safe with a default factory code, reset it as soon as possible. If you keep the combination as the factory code, anyone can look up the code and open your safe. Other safes, like the Fire Safe, come with factory codes that are unique to each safe. This code can't be changed or deleted and always opens your safe. 2 Advertisement 3 Get a replacement factory code from SentrySafe. If you can't find your user code, you may have lost your safe's unique factory code or don't remember your combination, go to SentrySafe's lost key or combo page to request a recovery code. To get your code, enter your safe's model and serial number, fill out and notarize the verification form, and pay a small fee. Or, call SentrySafe's Customer Care line at 800-828-1438. A replacement code costs $29.95 in the US, $40 in the UK, and $40 in Canada, £19 in the UK, and £19 in most countries in the EU. It usually takes 7 to 10 days to receive your replacement code. SentrySafe also offers key replacements if you've lost your safe's keys. 4 Scan the barcode inside the door of your safe if it has one. Open your user code and look for 3 vertical notches along the left side of the back of the door. Then, insert and pry a flat-head screwdriver into each notch to peel the plastic panel from the back of the door. Towards the top, right-hand corner of the door, look for a white barcode sticker. Simply scan it with your phone using a QR or barcode scanning app to receive the factory code.[3] Depending on your safe model, the panel covering the back of the door might be secured by screws. If you can't scan the barcode because it's covered by gears or other locking mechanisms, simply peel off the sticker. Advertisement 1 Enter the factory code to open the door. Whenever you change your SentrySafe's combination, or user code, open up the door. This prevents you from getting locked out of your safe before you reset the code. So, enter the 5-digit factory code listed on the back of your user manual and open the safe.[4] 2 Press "P" on the keypad and enter the factory code. With the safe door open, push the "P" button on the safe's keypad. On some safes, the "P" key might be labeled "PROG." Then, enter in the safe's 5-digit factory code again.[5] On Fire Safes, creating a user code doesn't delete the factory code. The factory code stays the same and you can use it to open your safe if you forget your user code. 3 Put in your user code when the "Proceed" light flashes green. After you punch in the factory code, you have 5 seconds to enter a new, 5-digit user code. While the "Proceed" light is green, put in your combination. The "Proceed" light will flash again to allow your user code to be set.[6] If you don't enter your new user code in 5 seconds, simply start the process again.
