This property is classified according to Giata.English, Spanish, ChineseReviews summaryThis summary was created by AI, based on recent reviews.Mandalay Bay Resort & Casino is a lively destination that many travelers appreciate for its vibrant atmosphere, featuring frequent live music and entertainment. However, some guests find the noise levels disruptive, especially at night. The location is convenient for Allegiant Stadium events but less central for Strip access, necessitating transport. While rooms are generally spacious and comfortable, some travelers mention outdated decor and maintenance issues. Cleanliness receives praise, though housekeeping consistency varies. Many guests feel the hotel offers limited value due to unexpected fees and expensive amenities. Service reviews are mixed, with reports of inattentive staff affecting overall satisfaction.Tripadvisor is not responsible for this summary or the opinions in it. The pool was very inviting. However, should you want to refrigerate your doggie bags from all the fine you will do, be sure to request a fridge from the bell desk for $35 a night. But if you're staying here, you can afford the $8 bottles of smart water. The house always wins--It's Vegas baby! I just wish the free shuttles still existed. All things come to an end.Steve J wrote a review Nov 2024Tobemrory, CanadaWe recently stayed at Mandalay Bay Hotel and Casino as a group of four. While there were some positives to our stay, the overall experience left us feeling underwhelmed, especially considering the high costs.Positive:The hotel itself is visually stunning, with a great location that provides easy access to many attractions on the Las Vegas Strip. The pools and amenities are impressive, offering a resort-like atmosphere that families and groups can enjoy. The staff, especially the head housekeeper who helped us during a challenging situation with our room key, were kind and professional, going above and beyond to assist us.Negatives:Unfortunately, the negatives outweighed the positives. From the moment we arrived, the hotel felt chaotic--busy, noisy, and confusing to navigate. Everything came with a price tag, which was overwhelming as we were traveling on a budget. It seemed like every turn involved spending more money, from overpriced snacks and drinks to the ridiculous policy of charging to use the fridge. The room itself was clean but had an unpleasant odor. The minibar setup was inconvenient, especially with children, as we had to constantly warn them not to touch the overpriced items on the counter. The lack of basic amenities, such as complimentary coffee or fridge access, added to the frustration.We also tried using the MGM app to streamline our check-in process, but it was more trouble than it was worth. The digital room key repeatedly failed, leaving us embarrassed in the elevator and locked out of our room several times. Thankfully, the head housekeeper verified our identity and helped us into our room, but this issue forced us to abandon the app and stick with physical room keys to avoid further hassle.Additionally, there was little information provided about the MGM Rewards program, and the process of adding rewards to the app seemed overly complicated. This lack of clarity discouraged us from using the program altogether.Suggestions for Improvement: • Provide clearer communication about the MGM Rewards program and ensure it is easy to use. • Improve the reliability of the MGM app and digital keys to avoid issues with accessing rooms and floors. • Include basic amenities such as complimentary coffee and functional fridge access. • Focus on making the hotel more budget-friendly and family-friendly by offering more affordable options for snacks and drinks Conclusion:While the hotel offers a beautiful atmosphere and excellent location, the high costs, noisy environment, and frustrating policies make it hard to justify staying here again. I'd recommend Mandalay Bay to those with a higher budget who can take full advantage of its luxury offerings. For families or budget-conscious travelers, there are likely better options elsewhere.Date of stay:November 2024A lot to digest? Cleaning service was great BUT if you have kids or need to store anything in a fridge, watch out! They have motion activated sensors on the snack tray on the counter that will charge you if anything is even moved and you will be charged $50 if you even OPEN the fridge. A guest is not allowed to store left overs in their own rooms' fridge. A friend of mine opened a soda can from his fridge and it was flat so not sure how long those items have been sitting in there. Things are expensive enough but to charge guests to put a few things in their fridge is just plain bad customer service.Date of stay:February 2025Trip type:Traveled on businessTerry V wrote a review Jan 2025Fayetteville, United StatesHotel's FavoriteThird time staying at Mandalay Bay in the past year...Mandalay Bay is a great place to stay!!! It's a great property that is kept clean, well maintained, and has an excellent staff.! There are a variety of restaurants and I have yet to have anything but good food and service in any of them. So, a couple of things...On the plus side:1) The place is bigger than I thought (even after multiple stays). If you walk back towards the convention center and Shark Reef, there is a second Starbucks (first one is by the entrance from MB Shops and Allegiant Stadium). Then keep going. Go down the walkway with a panoramic view of the massive Mandalay Beach (impressive). There is a food court (Johnny Rocket's, Subway, NY style pizza place, Asian style food place, a health food place, etc...) Keep going. Another Starbucks. And finally, the Shark Reef. There is a lot more than I was previously aware of. And, unlike MB proper, the Convention Center is brightly lit. Again, I have stayed here several times before and never knew all this existed.2) The Parking Garage.Every other casino of this size on the strip requires a long winding trek from the parking garage to the lobby and then the elevators to your room. At MB, the parking garage has escalators strategically located to feed directly to the casino entrance. Yes, it is still a walk to get to the lobby, but the elevators are very convenient to the lobby. FYI, the Delano...now the W, is the benchmark to parking garage convenience at a large casino on the Strip.On the downside...1) Fitness Considerations. For those of you who like to work out... the cardio center is disappointing. Only about 15 machines (trying to remember... four treadmills, six cross-trainers and five bikes??? There weren't very many and at least two did not work.). No weight related machines. A single rack of dumbbells. A couple benches (I think?). No mats. No stretching area. Just not much. The Cardio Center is about half the size of the fitness center at the attached Delano (now the W) and not nearly as nice. And it is probably less than a quarter (maybe a tenth) the size of the Bellagio Fitness Center and not nearly as nice. But, to be fair, the Bellagio fitness center is absolutely amazing even by Las Vegas over-the-top standards..2) Location... I wish this property was more central to MGM properties instead of on the very south end, making everything else MGM and beyond more convenient. However, this inconvenience by location is also what allowed room for the Mandalay Bay Beach (an amazing place!) possible and what enabled the layout of the very convenient garage possible. So, there is good justification for the location. Personally, I will continue to stay at the Mandalay Bay. It is an amazing place! And I highly recommend it.Date of stay:January 2025Samuel M wrote a review Jun 2025Erie, PennsylvaniaExcellent Hotel/Casino in Every WayStunned to see some of the negative reviews for this hotel and casino. Our experience was just the opposite and excellent in every way. Our check-in experience was fast and efficient with a short waiting time (we checked in on a Sunday night), our room was clean, well-lit, and exceptionally comfortable with a great view north of the strip, the bathroom was very good with dual sinks, a bathtub, separate shower, and private toilet area. The staff was friendly and very helpful whenever we had a question or concern. The Market commissary store on the lobby level was very nice, though a bit expensive as one might expect for Vegas. And, the casino is spacious and does a great job of mitigating smoke so that you aren't bothered by those smoking around you. The pools were also very nice, and the artificial beach great for families with kids. For a more 'adult' pool experience we visited the Moores Beach Club and enjoyed that very much. The hotel itself is divided into three wings. Separate elevator banks are used for floors 2 thru 16, 17 thru 30, and floors 56 to 62. This makes getting up-and-down fast and efficient, without having to stop on every floor.A convenient monorail links Mandalay Bay with the Luxor (right next door), and then Excalibur. So, if it's extremely hot outside or raining this is a nice option to move back-and-forth between the three properties ... and it's free to use.Of course there are always some cons (no hotel/casino) is ever perfect. The $65 fee to use the mini fridge is borderline ridiculous. If you have leftovers from dinner you have no place to store extra food or drink if you don't pay for this. A more reasonable fee of say $25 would be appropriate (if they must charge a fee). And, of course don't touch or even look at the tempting drinks, food, and snacks from the minibar. If you touch them you could get charged for them, and they are way, way over-priced. But, overall we absolutely loved our stay at Mandalay Bay, and without question would stay here again. No, it's not a 5-star hotel, but it was indeed a 'five-star experience' for us.Date of stay:June 2025Trip type:Traveled as a coupleRoom Tip:The minibar and mini-fridge in each room are not free! Be sure to inquire about these charges...Swappi S wrote a review Mar 2025The toilet door did not lock from inside, bathroom door had a few screws loose. The use of refrigerator is charged. There is no complimentary water and water from minibar costs like 20 bucks. Most hotels give at least two water bottles complimentary in this price range and allow more in room amenities. I would rather pay more for a room and get these things "complimentary" because having these micro payments cheapens the whole experience. It is called hospitality for a reason. There are better pools/resorts in Texas so what even is the point in staying here anymore. I would suggest staying at a more "hospitable" location rather than this micro payment price gouging hell. I would have probably enjoyed more by staying at a different property.Cara T wrote a review Jul 2025Los Angeles, CaliforniaPool is insanely crowded. Hotel nickel and dime customers. Snacks and fridge on sensors so even if you accidentally touch or move something, you'll be charged. Worst shower I've ever experienced, super hot to super cold every 5-10 seconds, no matter what time or day I showered (we stayed 4 days, 3 nights, not 1 shower had consistent temps for more than 30 seconds). Our door key lock was missing a cover plate. They did window cleaning during our stay without notice so there were ropes hanging outside our window and we were told to close the curtains for next 7 hours - 8 am to 3pm (in case you were like us, planning to have a relaxing/slower morning your last day at the hotel). Parking lot was super far from lobby so be prepared to walk your luggage. Check in and check out was a nightmare with 100+ people in line. I opted to do mobile check in and check out due to necessity (because I was not going to wait 40+ mins just to check in/out. Check in/out machines were finicky for me so I had to use my mobile phone.Curiosity61900887803 wrote a review Dec 2024Mandalay is a decent hotel for families.Mandalay Bay is pretty decent for families. There's an element of Vegas I protect my child from. This was easily accomplished at Mandalay Bay. The cigarette smoke was low, and the guests at the casino were reasonably dressed with reasonable behavior (whew, no hey mom why is that lady...). While there are only roughly 19 pools open in winter, Mandalay has the nicest pool one. The pool is shallow enough for small children, and there's a great hot tub pool with a bar for adults. The rooms are a little small because 1/3 of the space is bathroom, making the bed situation tricky. The snacks are a problem. You have no fridge access, no microwave, and the snacks on the cabinet are pressure activated. Pick up a snack, or open the fridge for more than 30 seconds you get charged. The coffee isn't included with the room. The staff is awesome though, and the amenities are otherwise really nice.Date of stay:December 2024David A wrote a review Jul 2024Good but be aware of the location challengesMy Mandalay experience was great all the way around except for the Housekeeping phone system. I called housekeeping 10times from my room phone. After pressing the buttons for housekeeping you are now forever listening to the wait music. I waited for 30 mins before giving up I just left the room with the wait music/message still on. I called again when I came back with the same results. I did this on and off with no luck no answer. It was quite frustrating really. The housekeeping staff and service is good just no one answers that line. On the other hand the Bell desk scan system is simple & efficient but the staff are a bit short and not very welcoming or friendly. Also depending on what activities you have planned the Mandalay location might not be the most convenient. They do have the best pools on the strip. We did go to Sebreze Cafe, House of Blues and theShark Reef while we were there. Seabreeze has great ambiance food could be better. House of Blues have great ambiance staff and food was fantastic. Shark Reef simply is not worth the price. It is like going to the the Bellagio's Conservatory and paying $29 to get in (I know Bellagio's Conservatory is FREE, exactly my point) Please DO NOT waste your money. NOT worth a dime to go. There is a tram from the Mandalay to Luxor to Excalibur that made the location bearable but barely. I might not complain so much if the Market in the Lobby does not charge exorbitant prices.Date of stay:July 2024Sara F Romero wrote a review Jul 14They charge a daily resort fee that doesn't include coffee or water!
